this could be a common issue. Try refreshing this page in your browser. Introduction: What is the goal of this assignment? Learn the history of people with disabilities. How has the United States and the world responded to the needs of disabled citizens? What are the roles of the government, the market, and civil society in meeting disabled citizens' needs and achieving their rights? What kind of change do we need to make? What could you do today to improve the lives of people with disabilities? In addition to these, you will also read a news article on how the health care system is currently run. You will also read information on the Presidential Medical Commission on Disability and Older Americans. This will help you form your own opinion on these topics. You can print off copies of the documents you need and keep them in a folder for reference. Below is a suggested outline of the basic points you will need to address in your report. 1. States: Understanding the Context of Your Response 1.1 The History of Disabled People: In the United States, disabled persons have played an important role in our history from the earliest American settlements. The first documentation of disabled people was in the 1920s when white families began separating their children from disabled children in institutions or adoption. 1.2 The Stigma of Disability: The public took these actions because they believed that disabled people did not deserve the same rights as other citizens. After decades of prejudice, attitudes are beginning to change towards disability. This is largely due to social justice movements in the 1960s and 1970s. 1.3 The Health Care System and Disabled Persons: Disabled persons are often denied access to health care or treated poorly by health care providers. These problems are addressed by the American Disabilities Act of 1990, which passed in response to the McCarthy era. 1.4 The Personal Rights of Disabled People: Disabled people often have problems in various areas of their lives such as housing, employment, education, and the legal system. The Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 addresses many of these issues. 1.5 Disability Rights Organizations: Disabled persons need organizations to fight for their rights and needs. The American Association of People with Disabilities was created in 1972. 1.6 Organized Labor: Disabled persons are often ignored by unions. Disabled persons can be used as a political scapegoat when a company does not want to be regulated by the government. 1.7 Disability Issues in the Courts: People with disabilities are often discriminated against in court. 1.8 Disability 82157476af
